

No Time

Study Verse: Prov. 16:9, The heart of man plans his way, but the Lord establishes his steps.

Eph 5:15-17 Look carefully then how you walk, not as unwise but as wise, making the best use of the time, because the days are evil. Therefore do not be foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is.

My Thoughts: So often we look back at time past and wonder how did I get here? Where did time go? I hope, a moment of reflection is taken, to account for how that time was spent.. Was time made for Family and Friends? What about time spent with God? How often was Church attended? How often did you reach out in service for God? How many games did you make?, How many overtime weekends did you work? How many times did you say I need to but never did... call or visit your Parents, or Grand Parents, attend church, bible study. Etc.. What was the real priority of the time spent?

The world/life is very demanding. I know I have been in midst of it for 60 years so far.

I have lived in both Pastures. Let me tell ya, grass is grass.. I allowed myself to be consumed by work, I have allowed myself to be consumed by sports, activities, and stuff. I have allowed my priorities to push away opportunities for me and my son to spend time with his grandparents as often as I could have. I have allowed "Church" to consume time from my Son and Family.

I thought I was doing all the right things at the time. Looking back I could have, I should have been more wise in my priorities, so life would have been more balanced and less stressful or easier to process the "stress" of keeping up with the world rather than ignoring my time with God. He has blessed me soooooo much, I can not complain, I see now, if I made time for God first, that I would have had more time to accomplish everything important with joy not stress and frustration. He would have met my financial needs without overtime, I could have spent time and created memories with family, I could have served God in Church with joy and taught my Son the joy of serving God without it being another consuming job.

A relationship with God, following his plan, allows TIME for everything that is truly important. God always makes away where there seems to be no way. He creates time when there seems to be NO TIME. Start your time over today, tomorrow is not promised make your time count today,

Until next time, May God bless, heal, protect and grow in you daily, Everyone say, AMEN.
